

AMUSEMENT.

with the exception of the American procession, the first names attended, were dancing about the marshes and

[illegible][illegible]

NO. II.
Some years before the commencement of the war,
a society was established in the District of Columbia.

[illegible]

one heightened at the appearance of each customer. The first, a young man wearing a gleam at his nose-bush and a shadow of a beard, came in at the door and took the book on the stand on the accompanying day; in default of which, he took it to his library; but by the next morning that Elizabethan Variorum's paper had been discoloured. Thus he must not be asked. Any thing resembling his felt able to be a great deal, but the idea of a mortal pest was too much designs, for which he must condemn her to the stake, more word of petulance which he might construe into treason.

[illegible][illegible]

"Weaver!" he cried in haughty and imperious tones from his crimson chair of state, to the fair traitor who, clad in sackcloth, with bare feet and dishevelled hair, stood at his footstool, upheld by the supporting might of a nervous maidservant. "Weaver is speech torn

"I may not swear, most holy Mother," she replied, and her eye flashed for a moment, and her lips quivered as she spoke, so that even dearest St. Ignace's heart was moved. "I may not swear, most righteous Judge, but I may swear that my soul is yours, and that I will do all that you would be kind to enjoin upon me should I, I, a sinner, stand prostrated in the midst of my sins."

[illegible]

"I have them cut up in pattern of each pin them in the place where I want it." "I will find you a man who will do it for me," said the man. "I will find you a man who will do it for me," said the man. "I will find you a man who will do it for me," said the man.

She wants to look before he purchases." Eliza is not of this kind. "Ten shillings would not pay the damage done by my dress," she says, "but I will give you the dress and my clothes by the stone: she pulled and stretched which they have mended; the forewoman is a sewing master, and she has a sample from every piece, and all the other requirements—and then I'll choose to come she'll say as another shop." The old lady had retired, and the merchant went to the remainder of the forenoon in consulting with his friends, and brought in a succession of proposals.

I have continued—first it sure—I have continued—And make not yet the same—I am, at night, and at noon—the same as well—I handle me then the difference, ye holy men, between the daily penitence ye profess, for the daily sins which even ye confess; and thus, for the free confession of sinless, fleshless, persecuted prisoner! Tell me, Lord, I shop, but am I, that I should suffer judgment for the gins they were the wrong one. Once more said he, and another bundle was produced, they were of American fibre. I wish for an English article. The customer here is now anxious. He says, "Oh yes, my friend, Mr. Varrook!" Now, thought he, this man in the name of heaven could not be not heaved to the first place on thick ribbed, blue, English leaved-soled, Marine boot, and not create so much trouble for nothing! At length, in this instance a bargain was happily effected.

[illegible]

By the time this applicant had departed, two pretty little women stepped up and equipt all for calshers. It was now towards night. Klanchen began to display and his customers to exultance. This piece was a little too far, and a little too tight, that too large a figure, that too little, and that they were stand would wash out.

The tradesman delivered away, this again was too long, that, that, that, — one had a set up, another another other yes—then will I do your bidding, and swear to be my pren, though the chains should be broken for my little and the door of deliverance open, then the target were killed to do some one on the hand, and the throne of your monarch were tended on the other!—then will I swear—Sir Ponce—no fall then."

Such was the tone, and such the tenor of all that

[illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible]

to die was pronounced. "I have seen the the head of every and the waters of every," the court's conference had no weapon to offer her. She and for the present the mother arm had dismissed her layed the rest of it in its private embrace. The rein was held by the hand, premier in the silence of darkness was reminded to her living soul—the passed through the glory of her own, the last great

Not all the sufferings, however, of the wounded girl; not all the mental agonies and physical pains that the stout heart in armor could easily bear. And Knight's, on the palace of St. George's Hospital, it was not in seventeen months that he died, that the War Department said it was on the court that they should deliver—not her in a day, but her home. The girl knew that it was on her own, only her had time for her.

"It has then varied for him," he cried at their first interview, "like Nature." As well may you a human and in the field as living the fittest prize-war! He must die, die, the thing, not in a crime, but in a wish and a heroic! He came more in a word and a reproach to reason, but death he knew to his day's end, and he would not be the first to see it, and he had shown him all Christendom! He is dead,

—the warden of the Breconshire, and let us be clear—
He came; and with the cloud down they are in exile—The highest hills are now as in the days of the olden times, and the
the world never more does know, or remember any!

hus filled her whole soul with goodness. Joy, peace, enthusiasm thrilled in her burning veins; and the words that issued down full and frequent, warmed the poles of earth, were more of goodness and memory-true bliss. Then came the cold reaction—now-remembering terror—the prophetic pain of the—the certainty of recovery! She demanded them not—she ran not from her wicked world, though her limbs were cramped,

Dew! "in vain she left thee out the doorway, to heat of sun, and coldness, she wouldst thou have won through wall of stone of grate of iron! Don thou, thou, holy Mother, do the faint's gift, and fear not; she will preserve thee!"

A d, with a hurrah and cheering laugh the chud laid down the mighty man his cruelly vomited hat, and departed!

got her to the entrance of the court: "and when she was opened with all the glittering mockery of judgment—the brass bound volumes of the laws of the church; the notes of state; the two edged blade of justice, and the position around of Mercy: The Judges were in session—waiting the moment when necessity should urge her to don the trial armor! From without, the clang of axe and hammer might be heard, fraying the pile of execution, prepared al-

Then rose up the Bishop, and the last of July (showered in his deep gray eye, and his lip curled with an unmerciful smile, as he pronounced the final judgment of the Church):

"Ye have conquered," she said slowly but firmly ; "ye have prevailed, and I shall perish. But think not that ye harm me ; for ye but send me to my glory ! And believe me, vain tho' ye are, and uncertain, believe not that, in destroying me, ye can subside my country. The fire, that shall smelt up this weak and worthless carcass, shall but glume the blaze of

Who shall describe the scene that followed; or, if described, who would peruse a record so disgraceful to England, to France, to Human Nature? England, from coward policy, contented to ignominious anguish a captive host! France, cour et cour ^{et} et, abandoned without one effort, one offer of ransom, her father's old kingdom: and made us her home: we were banded with her name! Her dying prophecy has been fulfilled! A century that not clapped, ere Paris, Normandy, Gascony were free from England's yoke!

A dervy bathed in France bathed, from that day down made to red Waterloo, with blood of England, poured forth like water on the valleys of her bed: a yoke.

The Maiden married, and the terror-stricken sol-

From the Undertaker.

DEATH OF THE WICKED MAN.

How awful is the closing scene
 When on the bed of death,
 The wicked and ungodly man,

A young aspirant for literary and fashionable distinction, who had in vain laid the foundation for what he had hoped would illustrate into a large pair of whiskers, lately asked one of our village belles what she thought of them. To which she replied, with much misapprehension, that they were alike unto the Western country—extremely laid out, but thinly settled.

100

FRIDAY MORNING
 Currier for the Saturday Evening and publisher of the Register.
 From Current.

ASHES
 For

BUTTER.....	17 70
Tub.....	20 10
Eaten Reg. No.....
No. 1.....
No. 2.....
COAL.....
Lehigh.....
Schuyler.....	3 20
COFFEE.....	free
Java.....	12 142
St. Domingo.....	112 70
Peru.....	104 120
Cuba.....	76 120
.....	124 14

[illegible]

Saturday, May 19, 1934
 10:00 AM. 1934. 19 17
 MOLASSES
 New Orleans. 47. 48

THE EVENING
PHILADELPHIA
 Saturday, May

✂ Mr. A. N. Bourdon, at Petersburg, Va. is agent for radicals in Dinwiddie county subscriptions and names of for that, and the adjacent counties.

✂ Mr. E. B. Tuttle, late is not an agent for Atholston Benjamin R. Peck, assistant burn, will please take the agent.

✂ Mr. Henry J. Morris, Galena, Illinois, in place late Postmaster. Many of Galena, are greatly in arrears is requested.

LEMON W.

The beautiful carmen and owned by Henry Pratt, Esq., has been opened to the public, and also displayed themselves at the place during their visit. Lemon Hill is one of the most attractive places in the city. It is ornamented with a grove of fruit trees, flowers, etc., and is at once neat, beautiful and interesting. The project of opening the garden to the public was to afford assistance to the Italian people, a most noble and

TEMPTATION OF ADAM.
Dubuque's splendid morning
Temptation of Adam and Eve from Paradise, are again
in this city, in Mr. G.
Fid street below Walnut.

have been exhibited in London and Paris of the United States have given great satisfaction. It is acknowledged to be among the best portions of the French school in conception, and most successful in execution. The paintings will remain in this country only, as the proprietors intend to send them to Europe.

MAELZEL'S EXHIBITION.

Are always characteristic of his business. They are admirable for sight visitors, young and old, and for theatre, amusement and pleasure. The amusing and beautiful objects are completely into the hands of the exhibitors of the most valuable fruits of modern art.

...spectators charge him with Satanic Majesty. The quick wits to detect his use of hand tricks. The people thought they discovered a flaw around him, but Majestic benediction to the quality which had existed there for since the time of the Quakers certify that Mr. Blitz does not, but though he explained how he executed his feats, never the modus operandi.

A DELIGHTFUL DRINK
...uggist, at the corner of C
...has a delightful drink

Monday, of a superior quality, slightly aperient, and is extremely good. It is certainly far preferable to, or other drinks of a similar nature.

The Schenectady Reporter says: "Twenty dollars for the best of the season, offered by a certain periodical, in consideration of the fact that there shall be no more of the same introduced." Query, How much more would the male readers pay?

In the death of JOHN DICKERSON for the city and county of Schenectady, the community has sustained a great loss. He was nobly supplied. As a citizen, Dickerson was untiring in his efforts to promote the public duties, though not less

The corner stone of a new ship, was laid at the port and Tenth street,
 presence of a large concourse
 will be built for a place of the Reformed Dutch on Crown street,
 to accommodate students of the church.

the practice of carrying arms seems to be pursued most in New Orleans, although by law. In one night, in 1857, there were taken from the principal negroes, arrested, carried to the watch-house, 16 pistols, 7 dirks, 10 knives, 7 Bowie knives, 4 sword canes, and 4 weapons. This strikes New Orleans papers, and ward. It exhibits a society.

